

I get a similar feeling when I keep putting off a task I hate doing!

Happy Easter!

I wish I could say I am sworn off chocolate forever...but that would be a lie!

5 tips to make you feel more prepared for your home organising session!

1. Start small - one cupboard at a time; you will feel FABULOUS on completion rather than trying to tackle a whole room and not being able to finish!

2. Have all your tools at hand before you start, otherwise having to go off and look for a label, kills time and can distract you.

3. Go through items as you pull them out and group like items together. Don't worry over items that you are unsure of, use the 'I'm not sure pile'. Get through the rest of your items and come back to it.

4. Clean out the space and put things back.

5. Work as quickly as you can; items out, divided and put back - that's the main goal. Sorting small items into type is a session for another day. You want to have the space organised -the fine tuning can come afterwards.

6. Donate as soon as possible. Some charities collect - give your charity of choice a call and find out.

Book an organising session

I get my underwear organising boxes here to keep my smalls drawer nice and tidy.

If you need sturdy storage boxes, I always suggest clear plastic so you avoid attracting cockroaches and you can see inside them. I get mine here.

Happy organising!
